Conduct research on your assigned country using www.WorldPopulationHistory.org and other research sources. Consider the quality of life indicators discussed in class (years of education for girls, infant mortality rate, etc.) and choose three to look into further. Answer the following questions:

- Quality of life indicators
  - What is the rate of each for your country?
  - Does it seem like these indicators relate to each other?
  - Have these indicators changed recently? If yes, are they increasing or decreasing and is that a positive or negative change?

- In what stage of the demographic transition model do you think your country fits?

- How have fertility rates changed in your country from 1950 to present?

- What is the population of your country? Is it densely populated?

- What challenges might your country face in the future?
